Who that really wishes to rid the land of the great evil of intemperance can doubt that we have our legitimats field of labor in the child-heart of the world? In this warm, luxuriant soil, whatever sown yields an abundant harvest. We have seed given us to sow of which our farmers nover dreamed of. Science and religion join hands in the temperance reform of the present day. The battle with intemperance, fought in this nineteenth century, is not a blind combat with the demons of drink.

We dare not claim to be better than the mobile pioneers in this righteous essies, but we have more light than they, and shall be held responsible for the results of our labors in proportion to that light.

Upon the Christian Church the burden of responsibility largely resis, and the work of education must be carried on mainly through its agency.

The question is sometimes asked why we should make a specialty in regard to temperature instruction in our Sanday schools? The answer is three-fold. First—The necessity of such instruction is imperative, in view of the fact—now generally admitted—that intemperance anderlies and incides well-nigh every other sin.

Temperance in the Sunday School.

And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children—less. 3: 18.

The present age is one in which children and youth shall be so thoroughly and intelligently educated in the fluing resistance but among advanced thinkers. "What shall we do for the child!" is the great question which greets the new century. In the issues of this question none are more deeply interested than the friends of temperance. The Catholic priesthood prove their wisdom when they say, "Give us the children and we care not who have the men and women."

While public attention is arrested by the truly wonderful work of reform in progress among men and women who are the siaves of appetite, many thoughtful people are asking, "Is there not a better work even than this—the work of preventing such experiences !"

Life boats are good when ships have gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the fatal rocks, but how gone to pieces on the

The plan has since been matured and adopted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and is meeting with general favor. There is no more hopeful feature of the temperance work than the general awakening of interest upon this phase of effort. Almost every mall brings letters from extrest men and women throughout the country, asking for information in regard to this plan of work and expressing the hope that it may succeed.

They can render no more efficient service than that of going out after the poor and unfortunate children, and by loving and persistent efforts, bringing them into the sunday school.

Many will engage in this work if encouraged to do so by their ministers and sunday school Superintendents.

W. C. T. U. Convention.

Upon the Christian Church the burden of responsibility largely rests, and the work of cloation must be carried on maloty through its agency.

The question is sometimes asked why we should make a specialty in regard to temperance instruction in our Sanday shools? The answer is three-fold. First—The necessity of such instruction is imperative, in view of the fact—now generally admitted—that intemperance underlies and incites well-nigh every other sin.

A story is current in the Orient of a wise old Shelk, who gave to a young Arab Prince, from whom he was about to part, a last of crimes, and bade him choose the one which seemed the least hermful.

The young Prince turned in horror from murder, theft, and loss of virtus, and told the Patriarch he would choose intemperance. "You have chosen that," said the wise old man, which will bring you all. Second: We have the children and youth in our Sunday schools during their most assesptible years, when the tides of being are set either toward good or ill.

Our teaching should be practical. We cannot afford to waste in gilitering generalities the time and strength that should be given to those things which concern the every day life of the child, and to suit instruction to a correct course of condinate is strongly emphasized in the Bible and in human experience. Hon. Henry Blar and in a recent speech in Congress, "The essence of the institution of slavery was ignormance." Can we not as truly say, the seemen of the institution of slavery was ignormance, "ray should be practically in our terms of the institution of slavery was ignormance, and those who have no helpful home influences. There are thousands of such in every large city, and there is no work of deeper moment thand that of editions and christianizing these spiritual orphans whom the providence of God has can be a subject of the morning of the morning science of the large of the morning science of the morning series of the morni Report of Ashtabula Co. tween the ages of 5 and 18 not attending any day school, 45 per tent of the entire number in the country. There are seven million of actual illiterates (those that can neither read or write) over ten years of age, more than two millions of these are women, to whom is committed the training of children, and as ignorance and vice so often go hand in hand, we can imagine the kind of training their children receive.

When we bear in mind another fact, shown by the efficial report of 1870, that there are in the United States 460,000 more persons engaged in the liquor business than in preaching the gospel and in school teaching, we realize the great need there is for an increase of home missionary effort.

A leave received of the entire downers in this her hour of deep affliction; that she may see God's hand leading her out of the valley and shadow into green pastures and by the side of still water.

ness than in preaching we realize the great need there is for an increase of home missionary effort.

A large proportion of our illiterate population are of foreign birth, and I am well aware that there are difficulties in the way of temperance work among these, aspecially the Germans: but they are much less formidable than we are apt to think. It is said, "We must respect the prejudices of the Germans." We ought indeed to remember kindly their national influences and habits, but the welfare of any people is much more worthy of consideration than their prejudices. All the more because of their lack of education upon this point should we endeavor most carnestly to teach their children, who are to become important factors in our Christian Republic, either for good or ill.

From the commune crowd, that clamors for the deatruction of our Sabbath and those religious institutions which are the bulwarks of our national peace and proseperity, we have everything to fear, but from the honest, industrious, and loyal German we have much to hope, if we improve the opportunities for religious influences and education which are open to us.

From experience, I affirm that wise and patient effort on the part of sunday school teachers will meet with kindly reception.

How to Train the Memory,

The very life of our republic is involved in the issues of the question, whether the Christian portion of our nation recognise and fulfil their duly towards those, who even in this land of Gospel light, are sitting in the dark shadow of spiritual ignorance. We can reach the children, and through them oftentimes the parents.

Third: It is of the atmost importance that those in our Sunday schools understand the issching of the Word of God on this subject.

Intellectual knowledge is often of little avail when unaccompanied by an educated and sensitive conclence. We must write, "thus saith the Lord," in lines so deep and enduring upon the hearts of our children, that neither the sophistries of the unbelleving, nor the power of sudden and fierce tempiation can crase them.

Dean Stanley says: "Each age of the church has, as it were, turned over a new the field in the reading of trashy novels.

How to Train the Memory.
